
STUDY WAR, Make Peace

INTERDISCIPLINARY MINOR IN INTERNATIONAL SECURITY
STUDIES AT NDISC

The Notre Dame
International Security Center

Understand the world through Foreign Policy and Statecraft

International Security has a profound impact on the world and the people living in it. Understanding the causes and consequences of war helps us understand how to prevent it. In turn, we give peace and diplomacy a chance.

The Notre Dame International Security Center (NDISC) is proud to offer an interdisciplinary International Security Studies (ISS) minor. This curriculum is designed for students throughout the University so you can bring your expertise into the global security conversation.

Why study at NDISC?

NDISC is committed to student success! The Center will help you:

- Deepen your knowledge of security issues and how to resolve crises;
- Become an informed citizen;
- Become an International Security professional through curricular and extra curricular opportunities;
- Get a career through our robust network of practitioners at the Department of Defense, the Intelligence Community, and many governmental and non-governmental organizations.

REQUIREMENTS

A total of 5 classes are required (15 credit hours)

Take two core classes (6 credit hours).

One of these courses should be political science and the other should be military history.

Take a total of 3 electives (9 credit hours) of approved courses.

These courses must be approved, but the list of approved courses grows every semester.

A capstone is not required to complete the minor, but you are welcome to pursue one through consultation with a director.

LEARN MORE

Contact

Political Science Professor Dan Lindley
dlindley@nd.edu

or

History Professor Ian Johnson
ijohnso2@nd.edu

Visit

ndisc.nd.edu
for more information

UNIVERSITY OF
NOTRE DAME

ARTS AND LETTERS